Villagers alerted the forest officers when they found the carcass of the around 10-month-old male cub. As per prima facie evidence, forest officers concluded that the cub was killed by a lion on Friday when its mother was away.

There were marks of injury caused by canine teeth of a lion on the body of the cub. Pugmarks of a lion were also sighted at the spot from where the leopard's carcass was found. However, we did not find any pugmarks of any adult leopard," range forest officer (RFO) of Visavadar, Ashok Gondhiya said.
